Recent issues of MN have contained a wide variety of articles on Japanese culture. They include studies on Nishida Kitarō, the assassination of Henry Heusken, Ōgai and the problem of fiction, Satō Haruo, Hitachi no Kuni Fudoki, early Meiji exhibitions, the Santai Waka contest of 1202, secret teachings of the Sesonji school of calligraphy, and the Shikidō Ōkagami.

The journal has also run dozens of reviews assessing recent books on various aspects of Japanese culture—history, religion, art, literature, and folklore.
